To Whom It May Concern:

My first recollection of CAMcad Technologies as a vendor to Huffman Corporation is ten years ago. We had a challenging application that required reverse engineering through digitization, a post processor, programming software and virtual simulation. Frankly, I thought what they said could be done was not possible... until they did it.

Since then, we have bought not only their array of CAD/CAM post processor and virtual reality products, but have relied on them as creative innovators for custom applications as well. They have pushed the envelope from their suppliers to come up with better tools for us. They have been a steadfast supplier for training. And frankly, we have come to consider them a valuable extension of our organization. We freely recommend CAMcad Technologies to customers, vendors, partners and friends as a strong innovative value-adding partner.
